

Problem Statement

Roommates need multiple ways of communicating with each other.

Details

An open communication between roommates should prevent or help with managing any issues that might arise while not everybody is available.

Having multiple different ways to communicate means that whether somebody is open to talking at that moment or not, they always have the opportunity to stay updated on what is going on with their roommates.